

This week we will be working on a 3rd person recount of the events in the film.

You have already completed some work on holding the readers attention by using the show don't tell technique. Those ideas will be useful to you.

Today we will look at some special sentence types that can enhance your writing and its effect on the reader.

For each sentence type, look at the pictures from the film and note down a few different ways this sentence could appear in your writing this week.

This is part of your planning for your extended piece of writing. You won't use all of the ideas you note down, but having them there will help.

You DO NOT have to write an idea for each picture on the page. The pictures are there to remind you of the events in the film.

2 or 3 examples for each sentence will be enough.

Verb, person sentence

These sentences start with a verb, followed by a comma, and then the name of a person along with the rest of the sentence.

verb

Flying, John had always been terrified of it.

Trembling, he fled from the beast.

The more, the more

The more, the more sentences are in 2 parts. The first more should be followed by an emotion word and the second more should be followed by a related emotion.

emotion

comma

action related to emotion

The more upset she was, the more her tears flowed.

The more confident she became, the more talkative she seemed to be.

If, if, if, then sentences

If, if, if, then sentences are made up of 3 separate parts:

If the alarm had gone off, if the bus had been on time, if the road repairs had been completed, then his life would not have been destroyed.

If I hadn't found that watch, if the alarm hadn't gone off, if it hadn't scared those burglars, then I wouldn't be sitting here today.

2 pairs sentences

2 pairs sentences begin with 2 pairs of related adjectives:

adjective

adjective

Exhausted and worried, cold and hungry, they did not know how much further they had to go..

Explanation of what the 2 adjectives relate to.
