

We are now slowly working our way up to writing the prequel to the Titanium story.

You have spent some time creating a back story for your main character and have an idea of what happened leading up to the events in the film.

Today, I would like you to look at a model text. It will give you an idea of what a prequel might sound like. It also gives you a chance to identify key features and steal some ideas.

Task

Analyse the model text, making notes of the things you find on the analysis sheet.

Only take notes. Write single words or phrases. Use bullet points.

You should have more than one thing written in each section.

You can do this in your book or on paper.

You can use each box as a sub heading if that helps you with presentation (squeezing things into small boxes may be tricky!)